BORAH LOSES IN TWO PRIMARY TESTS

MOVE UNDER WAY TO CREATE REPLICA OF ORIGINAL CIRCLE; C. OF C. MEETING BRINGS IDEA

Noggle Discusses Plans for Construction of Earthworks; Courtright Sees Possibility Of CCC Unit: Uptown Traffic Talked

Civic progress removed Circleville's original circle and it may create a replica.

This city, rich in history, may soon enjoy the benefit of sightseers if a suggestion presented the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday by Mack E. Noggle is carried out.

Mr. Noggle suggested the city create a replica of the original earthworks to attract tourists and combine the idea with a city park development.

"This is the only Circleville in the United States having the name and a reason for it," Mr. Noggle told the organization.

"Tourists are examining their maps to seek places to go," he said, "and the historical background we have should stop them here. I realize it is a big task and must be worked out carefully. The park should be properly landscaped and a museum could be created. Many people have antiquities they would be glad to present to such a museum."

60 JAP MINERS KILLED IN SHAFT

Winding Gear of Elevator Breaks; 20 More May Die

LONDON, April 15.—(UP)—More than 60 miners were killed today when the winding gear of an elevator broke at the Sumitomo Coal mines in Fukuoka prefecture of Japan, the Exchange Telegraph Tokyo correspondent reported.

Shifts were being changed at daybreak, the correspondent said, when broken cables sent 63 men plunging 2,000 feet to the bottom of the shaft. About 20 were found alive, the correspondent said, all desperately injured and likely to die.

COMMISSIONERS DELAY REMOVAL OF NEWSPAPERS

Transfer of newspaper files in the county auditor's office to the State Archaeological and Historical society was held up Wednesday morning through orders of the commissioners.

Representatives of the society called for the books but were informed the board had decided not to release the files. A resolution for the transfer was adopted but it was reported complaints had been made the board's action.

New bricks will be installed as far north as the alley by The Herald office. Old bricks will be used for the balance of the work.

She was working in the fields just before the birth, the correspondent said. He added that the babies' condition was weak and that physicians did not expect them to live.

43 Others; Local Girl Third in Competition

Pickaway-co rural high school students won honors in the recent senior scholarship test conducted in schools of the state, a report received Wednesday by G. D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, revealed.

Harmon Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter, Deercreek-twp, with a score of 299 out of a possible 400, and John K. Lamb of Perry-twp, scoring 294, finished on top the list of 44 who took the test. Alice Mary Griner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred P. Griner, E. Main-st., was third in the county and first among the Circleville seniors. Her grade was 283.

Eleven of the 44 who took the examination finished in the upper 25 per cent in the state.

Scoring of the other eight seniors follow: Helen Pauline Hill, Deercreek-twp, 280; Matilda Davis, Circleville, 277; Hildeburn Jones, 273; George M. Peters, Walnut-twp, 268; Ruth E. Skinner, Darby-twp, 264; Anne Reber, Walnut-twp, 263; Ivan E. Amerine, Walnut-twp, 262, and Jane Littleton, Circleville, 261.

The examination was conducted March 28, but the grades were not approved until April 10. Pickaway-co educators, who conducted the test, were not permitted to announce the result until the grades were approved by the state department of education.

"WAR BABIES" CALLED

Mussolini Ready to Defy Britain and League of Nations Against Sanctions

ROME, April 15.—(UP)—Italian soldiers smashed their way today into Dessye, grand headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie and 145 airline miles from his capital, Addis Ababa.

As they did so, youths of the class of 1915, born as Italy was entering the World War 21 years ago, responded to a call to the colors to back up Premier Benito Mussolini's defiance of Great Britain and the League of Nations.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Mussolini's envoy at Geneva, was about to begin talks with Salvador De Madariaga, representing the league, on the possibilities of peace with Ethiopia—and to tell him that there would be peace on Italy's terms when Ethiopia's resistance was broken.

The youths of 1915 were still marching to barracks today, to the blare of Fascist military bands, carrying Fascist emblems and their little bundles of clothes, when Marshall Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the African armies, flashed:

"Our troops entered Dessye this morning."

All Routes Covered

By the occupation the Italians wrested control of every important caravan route between Addis Ababa and all of northern and northeastern Ethiopia from the eastern part of the front to Lake Tana over by the Sudan.

They had gone 250 miles from the British border which they crossed October 3. They were but 170 miles by two roads from Addis Ababa.

It was believed in reliable quarters here that Badoglio would bring up airplane squadrons to Dessye and order a march on Addis Ababa as soon as Gen.

PROFESSOR, WIFE KILLED BY BOMB IN MAN'S AUTO

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—(UP)—White-haired Dr. William D. Moriarty, dean of the school of merchandising at University of Southern California and his wife were killed last night when a home-made bomb, which police believed he ignited, exploded in a parked automobile.

Two other occupants of the vehicle were seriously injured but are expected to recover. They are Harley McCoy, business associate of the educator, and Eleanor Thonis, a friend.

The explosion took place shortly before midnight as the car stood parked in a "dead end" street near fashionable Hillcrest country club, several miles outside the city limits.

The bodies of Dr. Moriarty, 50, and his wife, Dorothy, 48, were badly mutilated. The explosion apparently caused their instant death.

ALIENATION SUIT IN JURY'S HANDS

Million Dollar Trial, Concerning Piqua Man, at End

MIAMI, Fla., April 15.—(UP)—The $1,000,000 alienation suit of Mrs. Gladys T. Orr against Mrs. Dorothy Clark went to a circuit court jury today.

Orr is from Piqua, Ohio.

Judge Worth W. Trammell turned the case over to the six jurors at 10:15 a. m. after instructing them how to determine whether Mrs. Clark is guilty of theft of the affections of Morrison B. Orr, husband of Mrs. Orr.

Taking of evidence was concluded late yesterday with introduction of letters which Mrs. Clark wrote Orr occupying an increasingly important position.

Mrs. Orr's counsel, in rebuttal argument, read the letters slowly to the jury. Containing endearing phrases and expression of regret over separation, the letters were interpreted by Mrs. Orr's attorneys as deliberate attempts by Mrs. Clark to gain Orr for herself.

Utilities were steady to firm, featured by Electric Power & Light issues. Most of the rails rallied. Case rose 2 points to 169 in the farm shares. Motors firmed fractionally as did coppers.

DOWNSTATE RETURNS

Downstate returns, slowly accumulating, indicated Horner had defeated Dr. Heroan N. Bundesen, backed to the limit by the Cook-to Democratic organization, all-powerful machine of Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago and Patrick A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman.

Returns from 3512 precincts gave:

Bundesen 441,884.
Horner 358,090.

DOWNSTATE IMPORTANT

In each case, downstate returns were vital. Borah, born on a southern Illinois farm ran ahead of Knox in the agricultural district.

Likewise Horner, though trailing Bundesen in late returns, was expected to win handily when all votes were counted. His margin in some downstate counties was as much as 10 to 1 and averaged (Continued on Page Three)

PRES. ROOSEVELT POPULAR

Horner, Supported in South,

Governor's Place

BY UNITED PRESS

Sen. William E. Borah, liberal, appeared to have come out second best today in two midwestern tests of his popularity as a presidential nominee.

Frank Knox, Chicago publisher who opposed the senator in the Republican presidential primary, piled up a lead in the Chicago district that more than made up Borah's superior showing in state committee.

Roosevelt, unopposed in the Chicago district, carried the district by a 100,000 vote margin. Borah was overthrown in a district contest in Nebraska, partly because of Nebraska Republicans' vote in name of Gov. A. L. Johnson, Kansas.

Roosevelt received over 600,000 "unopposed" votes. Returns from 1,198 precincts in Nebraska gave:

Borah 53,888.
Landon's name was withdrawn more than 5,000 ballots from these precincts. Knox's name was at least 100 although neither was officially in the contest.

Hoover Supported Too

Former President Hoover was named for vice-president in at least 200 ballots. Illinois and Nebraska delegates to the national nominating convention may consider these "advisory" although they will be nominally uncommitted.

Returns from 2,918 of Illinois 7,430 precincts gave:

Knox 273,960.
Borah 210,729.

In the next most important contest of an election which Chicago was replete with hoodlums, sluggings and kidnappings, the Kelley-Nash political machine looked sorely beaten by vigorous Gov. Henry Horner, seeking Democratic renomination.

Downstate returns, slowly accumulating, indicated Horner had defeated Dr. Heroan N. Bundesen, backed to the limit by the Cook-to Democratic organization, all-powerful machine of Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago and Patrick A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman.

Returns from 3512 precincts gave:

ECKENER REQUESTS NAZIS TO REMOVE NAME BAN

BERLIN, April 15.—(UP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin chief, was expected today to ask Air Minister Hermann Goering to rescind a decree under which his name was banned from all newspapers because he was not sufficiently enthusiastic in working for the Nazis during the recent election campaign.

Eckener left Friedrichshagen last night to seek Goering's aid. The ban was imposed by J. Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment.

Eckener's name has not been mentioned in any newspaper mentioning the recent try of the new Zeppelins.

PARKER CALLED BY GRAND JURY IN WENDEL CASE

"Progress Made," Trenton Hears; More Witnesses to Be Queried

TRENTON, N. J., April 15.—(UP)—The grand jury investigating charges that Paul H. Wendel murdered the Lindbergh baby summoned Detective Ellis Parker of Burlington-co to appear for the third time today and announced mysteriously that it was "making progress."

Allyne M. Freeman, grand jury foreman who delayed the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann three days, refused to reveal what trend the "progress" of which he spoke was taking.

Subpoenas also were issued for Parker's son, Ellis, Jr., and his secretary, Mrs. Anna Bading. All have testified before the grand jury before. Their recall, after the jury had heard witnesses identify Wendel yesterday as having been seen with an infant after Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped, aroused new interest in the jury's activities. It had been believed until last night that Wendel would be absolved within a few hours.

Wendel, a disbarred Trenton lawyer, signed a confession before Hauptmann was executed that he kidnapped and murdered the Lindbergh baby, but he repudiated it as soon as he was released from the hands of "kidnappers" who he said tortured him into signing.

The "kidnappers" turned him and his confession over to Detective Parker, who delivered him to James S. Kirkham, chief of Mercer-co detectives, who charged him with murder. The grand jury questioned Kirkham yesterday. The nature of his testimony was not divulged.

Potentially most important among other witnesses before the grand jury yesterday was Emanuel Einziger, Keyport tavern owner, who has said he saw Wendel in an automobile with several other men and a crying baby soon after the kidnapping. Immediately after Einziger testified, Tito Salamandra, a friend of Wendel's who said he loaned him his motor car the night of the kidnapping, was called. Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who sentenced Hauptmann, told a grand jury convening in Hunterdon-co that it was to give immediate attention to any evidence brought before it in support of a charge of kidnapping sworn against Wendel there by Mrs. Anna Hauptmann.

An investigation of Wendel's charges that he, himself, was kidnapped in New York was latent while New York investigators waited for conclusion of the New Jersey inquiries.

Wins, Then Loses

DISILLUSIONED, 18-year-old Lloyd Lewis, Missouri farm boy, was en route home from New York after winning and then losing Eddie Cantor's $5,000 peace essay contest because he had plagiarized almost every word from an article by a college president. Lewis readily admitted copying the article and then submitting it as his own, but insisted he "didn't think he was doing anything wrong," because Cantor failed to specify that the essays should be original compositions.

KNOX IS VICTOR AS CHICAGO AID SWINGS RESULT

Continued from Page One about 4 to 1. Bundesen was conceded a lead of 160,000 votes in Cook-co but trailed so badly elsewhere that he had little chance in the state as a whole.

If Borah's downstate lead reduced the Knox margin very much—even though Knox won—the Chicago publisher's strength at the Republican national convention at Cleveland in June would be lessened materially because, as a "favorite son," Knox would be expected to dominate by a heavy margin.

Renomination of Democratic Senator James Hamilton Lewis was never in doubt after the first thousand precincts had reported. Returns from 1,286 precincts gave Lewis 190,046 votes. Lewis, endorsed by both the Horner administration following and the Kelly-Nash machine was opposed by Miss Ruth McNamara and C. H. Kavanaugh. Likewise, Otis F. Glenn established barely what appeared to be an unbeatable margin over former Congressman W. E. Hull for the Republican senatorial nomination.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(UP)—Sen. William E. Borah claimed today that he was carrying rural Illinois by a margin of 3-to-1 over Frank Knox in the state's presidential primary and forecast at least a moral victory over the publisher who ran up a big lead in Chicago.

Political Washington was unable to assay the Borah-Knox battle pending further down-state reports. Observers believed gubernatorial primary returns so far indicate Republicans have a good chance to regain control of the Illinois state government in next November's election.

Reports from Nebraska's presidential primary foretold nominal victory for Borah but showed president Roosevelt almost a 2-to-1 choice for president over all Republicans on the basis of partial returns.

MINERS FEARED LOST AS RESCUE ATTEMPT FAILS

Three Entombed in Abandoned Gold Mine; Emergency Tunnel May Collapse

MOOSE RIVER, N. S., April 15

—(UP)—Three men entombed in an abandoned gold mine were condemned to almost certain death today. A rescue shaft driven in three days through 70 feet of almost solid rock seemed about to collapse, driving rescue workers to the open.

Exhausted miners began a new shaft down through tons of rubble toward the 140-foot level where the men were trapped by a rock slide Sunday, but, even with the aid of a steam shovel and tractor sent here by the Nova Scotia government on a special train from Halifax, the rescuers feared they would be too late.

Until mine inspectors called the rescuers out of their shaft last night, the workers had expected to reach the entombed men today. Mining experts said the rescue tunnel might collapse at any moment.

Smoke still filtering through the slide over the old mine's original shaft encouraged a belief that Dr. D. E. Robertson, Herman Mac Gill, and Alfred Scadding, the buried trio, still were alive.

Miners believed that the three had built in a drift protected from the slide. They probably could find water in the mine, but they had no food. Even the most optimistic among the rescue crew thought three days would be required to sink the shaft begun this morning.

Wives of two of the buried men, McGill and Robertson, reached Halifax from their homes in Toronto last night but were persuaded to stay there because of lack of accommodations at the mine.

the district in the interest of a time limit.

Some members blamed business men and store employees for the condition. Others said visitors parked their cars early in the evening and stayed late to "watch the crowds." Suggestions of a two-hour limit were made and were downed by protests. The limit would drive away shoppers. Other business men believed it would increase business by providing customers an opportunity to park cars in the downtown district. A suggestion was made that a time limit be established and merchants supply windshield stickers to farmers. This would keep city owned cars under a time limit and farmers the privilege of longer parking. All information obtained in the discussion will be referred to the survey committee.

Garbage Collection Up

Collection of garbage, a problem to many residents, was discussed. The city has no regular system for collecting garbage and residents must depend on "who ever comes through the alley." In some instances garbage and ashes are collected from one resident, hauled a short distance and dumped back of another property. One resident reported a northend family, with a negro maid, sent the maid to Hargus creek to empty the garbage.

Alfred Lee, who introduced the problem, reported a system had been worked out in Newark for collection of garbage twice a week. Residents pay a small monthly fee. Members concluded some system should be worked out through the city's service department. Reliable collectors could cover designated districts and residents who desire their garbage collected could notify the department. H. L. Steinhauser, vice president of the C. of C., and a member of city council will present the plan to councilmen and health officials.

Boulevard Lighting

Installation of a boulevard lighting system in the downtown district was recommended and a committee will be named by Mr. Wallace to obtain figures and information. C. T. Gilmore, manager of the Southern Ohio Electric Co., said his company would furnish any information desired to the Chamber of Commerce and city officials.

Mayor W. J. Graham asked the Chamber to assist his garden project for relief families, but a number of objections to the plan were heard. Two members, who had closely watched such projects in other cities, reported they were failures. Relief workers took no interest in the gardens, they said. Those who desired gardens obtained land and planted gardens without assistance.

Other subjects discussed included alley lights in the downtown district, sidewalks and stop signs. Many merchants are interested in installing alley lights back of their stores. Councilmen will be asked to connect these lights with the regular street lighting system.

Sidewalk Job Approved

Vattier Courtright reported the sidewalk project had been approved but the program depended on WPA appropriations. The original project as listed with WPA, includes 109,196 square feet of new concrete sidewalks, 133,618 square feet of brick sidewalks for reconstruction, and 10,395 lineal feet of curb and gutters. About 800 residents signed for improvements.

Transfer of the stop signs at the Pickaway-Watt street intersection from Pickaway-st into Watt-st was recommended by Mayor Graham. These signs are governed largely by the state highway department. The mayor reported he had checked traffic at the corner and Pickaway-st carried the heaviest load.

T. E. Wilson, publisher of The Herald, will be the speaker at the regular meeting to be held next Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. in Hanley's tea room.

Open meetings for the discussion of civic improvements will be held every two weeks. Twenty attended the meeting Tuesday evening.

THE BIG DAY

IN THE countryside spring may have arrived with the appearance of the first robin or when the first crocus pushed its way into view. But to thousands of city youngsters—grown up and otherwise—these were, if anything, but empty preliminaries. To them the real curtain raising takes place when the major league baseball parks are thrown open for the summer and the familiar cry of "Play ball!" echoes across the land.

The outlook for the baseball fan in the fifteen major league cities this year is one calculated to raise his spirits even more than normally. The meteorological, the political and the economic predictions may not be so happy, but the respective local pen-pen. What's that? Even the experts' forecasts could scarcely be improved. It can't be right all the time, and besides, this is another year!

SERVICE

AS THE reign of King Edward VIII of England settles down to the jog trot day by day familiarity it becomes increasingly evident that he is a regular person. If one telephones to St. James's Palace to propound an intelligent question, it is not impossible one will find himself talking to the King himself, who does not need intermediaries to transact business. This was the experience of the owner of a small town, winner of the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, who telephoned the palace to find out the right way to reply to a telegram of congratulation from the King and was told at once by Royalty itself that he need not go to all the trouble, as his thanks were there and then accepted. So that little matter was settled to the King's taste. Major Noel Furlong then had a little talk with the king and the chances are he will always be a most loyal subject.

Humanness mixed with tact carries just as far with Kings as with lesser persons. Especially does it have weight with telephoning, a skitterish proceeding when entered upon by the tactless. A minor employee of the palace might have high-tailed the inquirer to the damage of everybody concerned. Instead, the King attended to the job with complete efficiency and made a friend for life. Respectfully referred to all answers of telephone calls.

Well, why not forbid these heart-balm suits? A man gets no compensation when he lets a big one get away.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

WISCONSIN VIEWING the Republican nomination situation from a mid-continent point of view are saying, "Landon will win on the second ballot at the Cleveland convention."

Certain it is he will come to the convention with close to the necessary 501 votes.

Former President Hoover's erstwhile lieutenants are reputed to have decided to support Landon. That means the southern bloc will be for him.

But Mr. Hoover, himself, remains opposed to Governor Landon. Secretly he undoubtedly favors himself, with Col. Frank Knox second.

SHANEUP

Energetically-minded Republicans are worried over the lack of a national administration of the national Republican committee under Chairman Henry P. Fletcher and the Old Guard. The committee as now arranged is a good one for obtaining "war funds"—but its administrative ability is under attack.

It is pronounced, if Landon wins the G. O. P. nomination, that energetic John D. M. Hamilton, his campaign manager, would become national chairman, supported by assistant, Oscar Stauffer.

CLEMENTS MAY RUN FOR CONGRESS
FRIENDS of R. E. Clements say the ex-founder of the Townsend movement is considering running for Congress in the San Pedro, Calif., district. . . . With the Ohio primaries just a month off, more than half of the State's delegation in Congress have gone home to repair their political fences. . . . One of the most original pieces of campaign literature to crop out in this year's electioneering is a creation by Lew-roy Robinson, young city official of Birmingham, Ala., who is after the scalp of Representative Geo. Huddleston, bitter anti-New Deal Democrat. The document consists of an imitation $10 Confederate banknote, on one side of which are these words: "This piece of paper is worthless. Worthless as it may be, it represents the full value of George Huddleston as a member of Congress."

DENMAN INVESTIGATED

THE SENATE lobby investigating committee has been asked to look into the action of Federal Circuit Judge William Denman, of San Francisco, appearing before a congressional committee in opposition to a bill regulating sardine fishing off the California coast. Denman, a one-time chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board, is charged with having private interests in fishing vessels. . . . Privately administrationites are much peeved at George Berry, Coordinator for Industrial Recovery, who, out of the clear blue, announced the organization of a Nonpartisan Labor Committee to work for Roosevelt's re-election. They say Berry jumped the gun on the plan without consulting Farley or any of the other party chiefs. Result has been a very unfavorable reaction among labor leaders. Hint is that Berry rushed into print to further his own political ambitions.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

SENATOR RUSH HOLT has a hard time pronouncing the letter "P". This makes it difficult for him to shout "Lies! Lies!" at Harry Hopkins in making his WPA graft charges. . . . Senator Black of Alabama and his wife both belong to the same American Legion post in Birmingham. He was an artillery captain during the War, and she was a yeomanette. . . . Chester Davis is one of the most nervous, rapid-moving executives of the AAA. But his voyage to Europe will be the slowest boat he can find. . . . Typical of Government "run-around" is this routine question put to Tugwell's Resettlement: "Information" referred to by Branch 57; Branch 57 referred to Mr. Clayton; Mr. Clayton referred to Mr. Taylor; Mr. Taylor referred to Dr. Agar; Dr. Agar referred to Mr. Maverick, and Mr. Maverick referred to Mr. Lloyd. . . . TVA even remembered the fish. They foresaw that when the gates were closed in the new Norris Dam, the river below the dam would dwindle, and the fish lie caught in pools. They posted a patrol to keep fishermen away until the flow was normal again. . . . When the U. S. cavalry puts on a show at Fort Myer, near Washington, they stage a sham battle of the Meuse-Argonne, shelling a miniature tank that moves against a back-drop.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

The Republicans (the Democrats say) will have all the money they desire.

The Democrats will have some difficulty. Their chief source will be office holders.

Democrats further charge that Republicans will seek "invisible" means as well as "visible" methods of conveying money. A congressional investigating committee, dominated by Democrats and progressive Republicans will be on their trail.

Republicans will renounce this as unwarranted snooping and charge the Democrats with utilizing relief funds to gain votes.

Democrats will shout that Big Business is trying to buy the election through the Republicans. And—as for the relief funds—if the Republicans believe that mess is of any value to the Democrats just let them come close and see the worried Democratic brows.

MOVEMENTS

Once upon a time it was believed that some "mass" movements would play a leading part in the election. But unless movements take hold while they are "hot," they cool off, and like exploding meteors scatter away into infinity.

Who will have faith in the Townsend plan following the present congressional investigation? That is what political leaders are saying. They add, now (but did not a year or so ago) that a broad federal social security program is needed, and must come, but the fantastic Townsend plan merely would have postponed meeting realities, with grave consequences to everyone.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, still speaking to immense radio audiences, enters new fields of attack, which alienate people. Those people believe that many of his ideas, instead of freeing them economically, might bind them into the slavery of a fascism. The organized worker is becoming definitely afraid that Father Coughlin might lead him to such a plight as befell the workers who followed the siren calls of Mussolini and Hitler.

THE CAMDEN RUBY MURDER

by ADAM BLISS
COPYRIGHT—RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Detective Keyes and Gary Maughan are attempting to unravel the mysterious murder of Margalo Younger, an actress and old friend of Maughan. She was killed with a needle-like instrument as she and Maughan sat in the home of Dove Van Every, a collector of rare jewels, whom she had met through a friend, Maughan, listening to his dramatic history of the famous Camden ruby. At the time she was wearing the ruby against the wishes of Van Every who described it as a "murder stone." Among those questioned by the detective were Maughan, himself; Van Every; his young niece, Joyce, who lives with him; her fiance, Allan Foster, who at one time was in love with the dead actress, and Joyce's companion, Laura Randall. Another suspect is Roy Barrimore, close friend of the actress, who shot himself shortly after her death. Van Every tells Maughan how he bought the ruby from two nuns. Joyce recalls to Maughan that she has secured a job in a department store against her uncle's wishes. Then Maughan questions Joyce concerning her visit to Miss Younger at the theater.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 21

"THE ACTRESS sent for you, you said?" I asked Joyce.
"Yes. I'll tell you everything. You can tell Captain Keyes, if you wish. I've nothing to conceal. You know I've been sort of jealous of her for a long time. When he told me Allan. Because I loved him, at once, and it's only natural of a girl to be jealous of other women their men have loved. I heard about the affair between Allan and Margalo Younger. He didn't tell me until later—until he said he loved me, and asked me to marry him. Then he told me Allan. But I'd heard before. I went to see Miss Younger many times—just to sit and watch her, and wonder what she had that I didn't. Allan didn't love her now, I knew. But he had, and I wanted to know what her charm was. I must have gone to a dozen matinees. I wanted desperately to meet her, but didn't have the nerve to go to the stage door. Captain Keyes would suspect me if I told him this. He would think I was jealous enough—would have killed her!" Her hand touched my arm. It was trembling.

"I was jealous, I admit that. She was older than I, more beautiful, and you must remember I love Allan. Nobody can take him from me! Nobody!"

"I never had the nerve to really go to see her, and introduce myself. Then last night—was it last night? I don't know. I was going out with Allan. You know that. He was coming for me at 10. It was a little before 9 when she called. Margalo Younger. I was frightened when she asked me to come down to the theater. I thought she was going to demand Allan back. Something terrible like that. I didn't want Allan to know she had called, so I phoned him, and told him to meet me later—not to come to the house."

"I told Miss Younger I would come. She seemed so glad to see me right away—that is, last night. I called a taxi and went to the theater, by the stage entrance. Miss Younger had left word to have me admitted right away, and in a few minutes, somebody took me to her dressing room. A maid was with her, and she sent away the woman, as soon as I introduced myself. Joyce paused and bit her lip.

"Yes," I encouraged.
"She wanted—she apologized for asking me to come and see her. She said she had heard of me, and my engagement to Allan. I was prepared for the worst. Then she told me how glad she was, how pleased. What a fine girl Allan is. Part of her name I thought, yet I didn't know. Even in her costume she was gorgeous, and I had come to believe she was one of the most beautiful women in the world, just because Allan had once loved her. I hope you understand."

"After she got through praising Allan, she asked me to do her a favor. It wasn't what I had thought, but she led up to it the way I had imagined she would. . . . She wanted me to ask her to our house for tea the next day—that's today. She wanted to meet uncle, and see the ruby. But she told me to tell uncle that she was a friend of mine. Of course I told her I would. I said I would call her in the morning. I was relieved, of course. I had thought she wanted Allan, and she only wanted to see the ruby. Then I met Allan, and that's all, only after what—happened last night, I couldn't call her. And I haven't mentioned it since."

"The ruby again. Margalo wanting to see it. Using Allan's friendship, his love for Joyce to see it."
"Joyce, did she ask you not to tell your uncle she had come to see the ruby?"

"Why, yes, she did. She said not to tell him she came to see the ruby. The visit was to be purely for tea. I could manage to have uncle home all the better. She knew if he was in the house, of course, he would want to meet her. She didn't say exactly that, but that's what she hinted."

"You thought it strange of her?"
"Well, rather, but I was glad to do it. It would give me a chance to know her better. She fascinated me."

"You talked of nothing else?"
"Nothing but Allan."
"Then you left?"

"She got some kind of a curtain call—I think you call it—and said good-bye to me. The last thing she said was to call her around 11."

"In the morning?"

"Yes."
Joyce had to go home for dinner, so we parted, I to go to Keyes' office and she for Van Every's house. Her last words to me concerned the promise I had made her. I told her I would call her uncle later that night."

Keyes was just leaving for dinner when I got in, so we went together to a small restaurant which he was in the habit of patronizing. There, I told him of my conversation with Joyce, glossing delicately over her jealousy of Margalo.

"He was as surprised as I had been over Margalo's suggestion that she have tea at Van Every's and see the ruby if she could. I could see it up to all his theories."

"This ruby," said Van Every by the door. "It was the first admission he had made that the ruby was important."

I did not go into detail, but told him the tale had been rather irregular, but that Van Every had the numbers of his bank notes, and had notified the banks.

"No arrests, you understand, Keyes, but he wants to know for his own good."
"You mean to say he doesn't know from whom he bought the ruby?"
"Just that. He's convinced the persons who came to sell it to him were disguised."
"Kind of a funny business."
"Van Every admitted he deals with queer people when he buys his jewels."
"How were those people disguised?"
"As nuns, Keyes."
He whistled, and looked at me as if I were a maniac. "Get the numbers of those notes for me, will you? He has more confidence in you than in me."

I promised him that I would, and mentioned I had already seen the numbers but had not copied them.
"We'll arrest the first person who catches them."
"The last thing Van Every wants, Keyes. Why not do it his way?"
"Too slow." And I knew from that, that soon as I put the numbers of the notes in Keyes' hands, he would give orders for the arrest of anyone cashing the notes. I sighed, but admitted he might be right after all. However, I said nothing else to him about the previous visit of the two nuns to Van Every's, and he asked me nothing more.

"I've been trying to get hold of Mrs. Bryce. I put the numbers in his hands. 'She hasn't been at home, but Miss Randall had the address right. Suppose we chase out there?'"

In a few moments we were in a police car bound for Mrs. Bryce's home. I felt rather like a traitor to Van Every, going out, and bursting in on his privacy like this, yet according to Keyes it must be done. Mrs. Bryce might possibly know something of the ruby. At least Miss Randall had hinted she might.

Keyes puzzled aloud on the way to Mrs. Bryce's over what Joyce had told me. According to her the door, the front door, had been open until Allan Foster left.

"We don't know whether Miss Younger was dead then or not," he muttered. "It would have been easy for someone to slip in, hide while young Foster came down the stairs, and then after he had gone to tip toe up. The murderer could hide around the house—after Mrs. Bryce came there was more or less confusion."

"You're wrong there, Keyes. It was when the police came that there was confusion."

"Anyhow, the murderer could easily get away. Unless, of course, Foster killed Margalo Younger."

I had to believe that, so made no comment. I couldn't believe that anyone Joyce loved as much as she loved Foster would kill Margalo. Much as I wanted to find her murderer.

Keyes read my thoughts evidently. "You don't believe either Barrimore or Foster killed Miss Younger, do you?"

"I don't know," I admitted lamely. "Well, the evidence is pretty strong against both, principally Foster. I'm watching him closely. It won't be hard to watch Barrimore. By the way, he's just the best of cars, because he's got to live! He'll be able to clear up some of this mess when he can talk."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

MASTERING BRIDGE (58)

JUST WHAT an opening bid of three should mean is still a controversial matter. In 1915 it meant an established minor suit of at least 6 cards, with a side Ace. That did not last long. In 1926 the opening 3-bid meant: "Partner I hold so powerful a trump suit that I do not care for trump length or strength from you. Probably I can go game, with slam prospects, provided you hold one or more Aces. Please bid in rotation each suit you hold headed by an Ace, commencing with the lowest ranking suit. Lacking an Ace please bid 3-No Trumps, to keep bidding open. If you bid 3-No Trumps, I may show you a second suit, but otherwise I shall bid game or small slam in my original suit. Do not shift my call."

The great trouble with the above method was the rarity of hands worth such opening calls. I made use of the conventional call only for a few months, as I found partners using it on too weak holdings.

In 1932 Philip Hail Stone made use of such an opening bid of 3-odd, to show game in its maker's hands. Now a solid trump suit (or at least one needing no support from partner), and certain game in bidder's hand, with slam prospects if partner can show one or more Aces missing from declarer's hand, is very rare. On an average, a 6-card solid suit, with sufficient side strength to make game, will appear once in 76,923 deals. Provided you have just seen such a hand, the probable time of its next appearance is 52,319 deals.

A hand worth only 9 tricks, instead of being worth 10 tricks, will appear more than 15 times as often as one with spread when 5 trumps are held. If 6 trumps are held the 9 tricks total will appear 10 times as often as the 10 tricks. The chances in 100 times of such a hand are as follows: down 1 trick, 18; make 4-odd, 41; make 5-odd, 21; make small slam, 9; make grand slam, 1. With so many more chances to hold a hand worth one trick short of game, year after year of being worth game, for years I have used the call when a full trick short of game, and it has given me the most excellent results.

With only 8 tricks in the hand the chances for game are reduced to only 54 in 100, with a bare 3 chances in 100 for a small slam and no chances in 100 for a grand slam. Unless at least 2 quick side tricks are held, in addition to any quick tricks held in a suit of more than 6 cards, an opening game bid, then to be utilized for an opening bid of 3.

Except possibly in spades, an opening bid of 3-odd has so little pre-emptive value in shutting out adverse calls, I consider it worthless. Unless willing to bid at least 4, do not bid more than 1 on such a holding. Any hand not offering good slam hopes, if it has a trick short of game in cards held, had better be bid game than 3-odd. That 3-odd should be reserved for hands worth within a trick of game.

Medical Reforms Recalled on Good Friday

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I LIKE THE story Channing Pollock tells in the March issue of a national magazine.

"Basil King and I were sitting to get a restaurant when a woman at the next table said to her companion, 'It's a dreadful state of affairs, but what can one man do?'"

One man in France, named Louis Pasteur, devoted from his observations that many processes of Nature are performed by the growth of small organisms, which we now call "germs" or "microbes." He came to the conclusion that the infectious diseases were due to the entrance of these minute organisms into the body.

Against opposition—international and personal—in the face of vituperation and abuse, he demonstrated before a national assembly of his opponents the truth of his principles.

See Fifth of Jails.
One man, John Howard, living in the eighteenth century, observed the truth of the jails. In the face of public indifference, he compelled the authorities to take cognizance of the conditions, and introduced reforms which he wanted the hospitals.

which at that time were even sicker than the jails, and by publishing the facts he brought reform all over Europe.

Philippe Pinel was one man in France, about the same time as John Howard, who saw the way in which insane patients were treated as if they were criminals or witches; chained, underfed, abused, lodged in filthy, unhealthy quarters. Alone and unaided until the last, he compelled change in these conditions.

"Louis Braille, blind from the age of three, taught himself to read by touching raised lines. By the time he was 25, he perfected his system of raised type for the blind and was teaching it in Paris. The Braille system has since spread throughout the world."

One man, Crede, found the cause and the method of prevention of infantile blindness. By insisting that this was the commonest form of blindness and that it could be prevented, he compelled the whole world to use silver nitrate instillation into the newborn baby's eyes, and hence prevented an incalculable amount of misery.

CHOCOLATE CARAMEL CAKE

Put on the stove one cup of sweet milk and one-half cup grated chocolate or cocoa. Stir until dissolved and then stir into it one cup of sugar and the yolk of one egg which has been beaten light. Boil all together and when cool add one teaspoon of vanilla.

While this is cooling mix the following:

- One cup sugar
- One-half cup milk
- Two and one-half cups flour
- One-half cup butter
- Three eggs

One teaspoon soda dissolved in a little boiling water. Stir in first part and bake in three layers. Use white icing. A whipped cream filling is excellent.

Today's Recipes

Creamed Finnan Haddie.—Three hard-cooked eggs, sliced; three-fourths pound finnan haddie, three cups milk, four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, salt, pepper. Simmer fish 20 minutes in water to just cover. Cool and flake. Make white sauce of milk, butter and flour. Instead of fresh milk, two cups canned milk and one cup of the broth in which the fish simmered may be used, if the smoked flavor is liked. Add fish and sliced eggs, season to taste and pour into rice ring. For the rice ring, steam one cup rice and add two tablespoons butter and some chopped parsley or green pepper. Pack into oiled ring mold, cover with oiled paper and bake 30 to 40 minutes.

Washington Cream Pie.—One cup sugar, five eggs, one and one-half cups water, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder. This makes enough for two thin layers. Put together with vanilla custard. Put white frosting on top, and when it has cooled, cover top with melted bitter chocolate.

FACTS AND FANCIES

A cookie sheet is a good investment. Not only does it do a better job of baking biscuits and cookies, but it's a good thing to set baking cups on in the oven. Or use it to hold individual molds of gelatin in the refrigerator.

For Children's Party

At the children's party a game may be played with lollipops. The children sit in a circle. One child leaves the room. Another hides the lollipop while the others watch. Then the child outside is called in

TIGERS START PENNANT RACES WITH VICTORIES

Cubs Bump Dean White Rowe Blanks Indians in Season's First Frays

NEW YORK, April 15.—(UP)—The count was one down and 153 to go today as 16 major teams, freed from the tension of opening day, settled down to the campaign that leads far into September.

Detroit's Tigers and Chicago's Cubs, picking up where they left off last year, rested atop their respective circuits along with some of their keenest pennant rivals and several second-division certainties.

The 1936 openers, which saw the Cubs, Tigers and a few other teams moving along in mid-season form, were played before nearly 207,000 spectators. It was one of the most successful opening days in baseball history—one which augurs well for the return to peak-year prosperity of the national pastime.

As was expected, the first games of the season in most instances failed to shed much light on where the strength is this year.

Gomez Loses, 6-1

No. 1 game of the day—opened by President Roosevelt—was the Yankee-Senator duel. Lefty Gomez, New York left-hander, lost a heart-breaking game, a duplicate of the opening game he dropped a year ago when the Boston Red Sox whipped him, 1-0, with a run in the ninth. The Senators, behind the four-hit pitching of Buck Newsom, did the same thing. Reynolds' double with Travis aboard won the game in the last frame.

Newsom shared American league pitching honors with Schoolboy Rowe of the Detroit Tigers. Rowe held the Cleveland Indians to four scattered blows as his side chalked up a 3-0 triumph. Hank Greenberg, Tiger first-baseman, put the game on ice with a double in the first inning which brought in two runs.

Scoring three runs in the eighth, the Chicago White Sox won from the St. Louis Browns, 7-6. Ray Phelps, relief pitcher, won his own game with a double.

The "million dollar" Boston Red Sox hammered out a 9-4 victory over Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Jimmy Fox, one of the four players Tom Yawkey bought from Mack last winter for $400,000, starred for the Red Sox, getting a triple, double and single. Wes Ferrell kept the A's 10 hits well-scattered and struck out 10 men.

The New York Giants whipped the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8-5, before the day's largest crowd—54,392 spectators in the Polo Grounds. The Cubs cracked out five homers to drive Dizzy Dean from the mound and beat the Cardinals, 12-7.

About This And That In Many Sports

Stooges Deserve Credit

You've got to hand it to the Stooge Club for going ahead and doing things. The Stooges sponsored a dance Tuesday evening the proceeds of which are to go toward construction of additional football bleachers for the high school field. About $50 was cleared by the energetic youths—Freddie Grant, president of the Stooge crew, thanked all who attended the shindy for their part in making the dance a success.

City to Add Coach

Circleville is to add a new athletic coach pretty soon, but she will be here for a purpose other than coaching—Mrs. Stella Morrison, former Ashville girls' coach, and her husband, Frank, are to manage a new grocery store on E. Main-st.—If Mrs. Morrison can sell groceries like she can coach basketball then she is some grocery operator.

Weather Perfect

Ah!—The weather today makes one want to travel to the Country Club, or along one of the county's streams for a little diversion—Spring is in the air, and it's about time, the janitor believed.

Golfers: This is another plea to visit the Country Club so you can get acquainted with Tod Thompson, new professional.

Whitehead in Form

Burgess Whitehead apparently won himself a home Tuesday by his splendid work around second base for the Giants—Several times Whitehead, who started in Columbus, came through with thrilling plays bringing more than 50,000 fans to their respective feet—He smacked out but one safe blow in five journeys to the plate.

Stout Touched Up

Mr. Allyn Stout, counted on to be the best in the Columbus hill crew this summer, took an early shower Tuesday when Messrs. Bob Fenner and Larry Rosenthal messaged up a perfectly legitimate baseball game—Fenner hard-hitting catcher, drove out a double with the paths densely populated and Mr. Rosenthal caught one for a 4-ply clubbing—In the meantime Rigney, St. Paul choice, was kinda tough Winsett's home run being the only really damaging blow.

Widener Has Chance

JOSEPH E. WIDENER, owner of the favored Brevity in the Kentucky Derby, seems to have a winner at last, according to form and the shrewd people who set the odds.

but the Philadelphia sportsman has sent likely winners to the post before, only to meet disappointment.

Ten years ago Widener's Osmand turned in such fine Derby time trials that he was regarded as unbeatable.

but a few days before the Churchill classic Osmand picked up a nail in his hook and had to miss several workouts.

Idleness dulled the sharp edge of his condition, and Osmand ran second by a head to Whiskery.

Two years ago Peace Chance tuned up for the Derby by running a mile in the record time of 1:35 4-5, but on Derby day Peace Chance was practically left at the post.

Last year Chance Sun, Widener's hope, was a favorite in future books.

but Chance Sun failed to train properly and another chance went glimmering.

This year everything seems to be pointing to a Widener victory.

He has a fine horse and a "hot" jockey in Wayne Wright.

you'll know the rest of the story May 2.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. BOWLER IS TOPS IN ABC SINGLES

INDIANAPOLIS, April 15.—(UP)—The 735 which Charles Warren, Springfield, Ill., rolled in the 35th annual American Bowling Congress today brought him $300 first prize and the 1936 individual title.

Final competition in the singles and doubles Tuesday failed to produce new names among the high 10 in standings. Competition in the team event ended Monday with the Falls City Hi-Bru, Indianapolis, in first place.

All of the 10 leaders in the singles bettered 700.

Anthony Slanina and Michael Straka of Chicago won the doubles title and $500 first prize money with 1,347. Only three other doubles pairs passed the 1,300 mark.

Winner in the all-events was Johnny Murphy, Indianapolis, only man to better 2,000. His score, good for $175 prize money, was 2,006.

TIE IS CHALKED UP IN AA; SECOND IN INITIAL WEEK

The second 13-inning tie game in two days of play in the American Association today gave fans an indication of how the teams will battle for the 1936 pennant.

Toledo and Minneapolis played for nearly four hours Tuesday in an 11-11 slugfest before the game was called on account of darkness. Kansas and Indianapolis in their opening contest Sunday had a 2-2 tie. Milwaukee, Kansas City and St. Paul chalked up victories Tuesday at the expense of Louisville, Indianapolis and Columbus.

Toledo outlasted Minneapolis, 19 to 14, but neither team was able to push across a run after Toledo tied the score in the ninth.

Milwaukee took advantage of Louisville errors to win 6 to 2. The Colonels made 10 hits to Milwaukee's nine but were unable to contact in the pinches.

LOCAL GOLFING FACE ARLINGTON IN 4-MAN MEET

Circleville's high school's golf team traveled to the Arlington course, Columbus, Wednesday, to tangle with Upper Arlington's last quartet.

On the local team were John Jenkins, Chuck Styers, Dick Melson, and Raymond Adkins. The youths were accompanied by Virgil Creas, who is coaching the "pasture" sport this spring.

Remember When?

The old stage coach house at Ritt's crossing was destroyed by fire.

This house was on the farm of George Ritt, north of the city. It was destroyed by fire in September, 1911.

Stage coaches stopped at the house as a resting place for travelers. It was more than a century old and contained eight rooms.

After the stage coach lines were discontinued the house was made into a tenant house and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wagner at the time it burned. The blaze was started by sparks falling from a kitchen stove.

FARM LEADERS TO ATTEND DISTRICT CONFERENCE

LANCASTER CITY ALL IS SCENE; TALKS PLANNED

22 Meetings to Discuss Legislation and Other Important Farm Problems

Fifteen Pickaway-co farm leaders, including Turney M. Glick, president of the Farm Bureau, and Marvin Steele, chairman of the Rural Electrification program, will attend a district meeting in Lancaster City Hall Thursday at noon.

If the weather is not good the attendance may be much larger; if good weather prevails it may be lower because Pickaway-co's farmers need every good day possible to catch up on their much-delayed spring work.

The principal topic for consideration at the meeting will be legislation. Perry L. Green, president of the Farm Bureau federation, declared Wednesday that all district conferences would be devoted to that topic.

Twenty-two conferences are being held from April 14 to April 24.

Other subjects which will be discussed at the meetings are rural electrification, membership, cooperative services, education, and recreation. Representative speakers from Columbus offices of the farm bureau will be present at each meeting to discuss progress and organization plans.

Library Notes

"WHY KEEP THEM ALIVE?"

In this new book, by Paul De Kruif, the author of "Microbe Hunters," "Hunger Fighters," and other books of popular science, voices a vigorous protest against the economic system that permits children to suffer from lack of proper feeding and from diseases by which science has provided preventable measures.

Mr. De Kruif does not discuss scientific medicine, nor any plan by which the results of laboratory discoveries might be more widely beneficial but his book will perform the service of awakening the larger public to the knowledge already known to physicians, social workers and public health nurses. The fact that the book is by an author, who has established himself as the writer of much read and thought provoking books, insures a wide range of readers, each one of whom will talk about it among their friends.

April additions to the Public Library include this book.

"MY LIFE AS AN EXPLORER"

Sven Hedin has described his explorations in many volumes. In this book he gathers his travels in one connected whole, beginning with his journey to Baku in the Caucasus. It is a stirring book of adventure, illustrated with the author's own sketches and, withal, is the modest, adequate story of a rich and important life. A new and satisfactory edition of this book is now available and has been added to the Circleville library.

"WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR"

By Negley Farson, ranking first in the current list of best selling non-fiction books, is another book with its first appeal to men readers. "A robust autobiography, unique in its human quality and its spirited writing. Farson has been athlete, engineer, salesman, and journalist; injuries received while flying in the war have frequently interrupted his active career, but have not dulled his zest, and he is gifted with an insight that makes of his experiences something more than superficial adventures on the surface of life." Appeared in condensed version in the Cosmopolitan.

"THE POET OF CRAIG HOUSE"

This life of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, by Hildegarde Hawthorne, granddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, is a worthy companion volume to "THE ROMANTIC REBEL," her earlier book portraying the life of her grandfather. In writing a delightful biography of the great American poet, who was a classmate and lifelong friend of Hawthorne, she has humanized a figure who has tended to become somewhat of a legendary figure in the eyes of a new generation. She has recreated Longfellow the man and made him breathe as a human being. This is a book intended particularly for young people, it has even greater delights for

ITALIAN ARMIES CAPTURE DESSYE AS IL DUCE ACTS

Rodolfo Graziani, commanding in eastern and southern Ethiopia, protecting his left flank by reducing the army of Ras Nassibu in the Harar-Jijiga region.

The immediate operation was expected to be junction of the Italian forces in the Dessye area with those from the Gondar-Lake Tana region and from the north along a main caravan route which runs northwestward from Dessye to Lake Tana.

News of the Dessye victory was all that was needed today to stir the country. It was known that Baron Aloisi was going to Geneva to defy the world.

The call to the boys of the 1915 class—many of whom never saw fathers who were killed in the World War—affected every corner of the country. No announcement was made of the number called. Foreign military attaches estimated the total at between 200,000 and 250,000. It was understood that they sufficiently outnumbered men who had been furloughed to do farm work, to bring the army to its greatest total—1,250,000 men of whom 350,000 are in East Africa.

It was understood that the augmentation of the metropolitan or home army was sufficient to leave Premier Benito Mussolini confident that he could maintain his positions even if Italy were attacked by Great Britain, acting either for the league or independently.

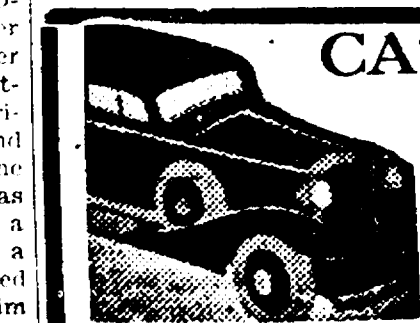

It was disclosed beyond doubt that Mussolini has no idea of consenting to peace until his army in East Africa makes certain that Ethiopia as now constituted is destroyed.
